Stout Serves as K-State Student Body President

Some students take it easy during their senior year of college. Not Caleb Stout (Kansas State 20), a senior from Cottonwood Falls, Kansas, majoring in agricultural economics. Stout is currently serving as the K-State student body president, adding to an already busy class and extracurricular activity schedule. As president, Stout leads the student government at K-State, and serves as a representative for the entire student population. In addition to his many other activities, Stout has also been a leader within FarmHouse, most recently serving as the director of new member education.

Stout recently shared about his experience as one of the top student leaders at K-State:

Why did you decide to run for student body president?

I am a 4th generation Wildcat, so running for student body president was an easy decision for me. I grew up in a great K-State family, clad in purple from an early age. For most of my life, I had heard so many stories about this place that the institution meant the world to me long before I ever enrolled as a student. K-State has done so much for me and my family, I wanted to return the favor as a good and faithful servant of the place I love.

What role has FH played, in your candidacy or during your term?

I would not have secured the election without the help of my FarmHouse brothers, nor would I have wanted to do this without them. Student body president is not an easy job, and it is only sustainable for me due to my deep love of K-State. My appreciation for K-State would not be as strong without the fellowship and community I have in FarmHouse. I love my FH brothers and I am so grateful they stayed by my side to support me as I stepped into campus leadership.

What has surprised you the most about being student body president?

The most surprising thing about the role is that I am in it. I believe this is the coolest job ever. I'm often the only student in the room for many big decisions regarding K-State. It makes me wonder, "How on Earth did I get here?" I did not expect this to be such an impactful position.

What has been your biggest accomplishment as president?

There is not yet any single accomplishment that I am comfortable hanging my hat on as president. Throughout my administration, the Student Governing Association has made several accomplishments including working with the Career Center to vastly increase Career Fair attendance, representing more than 100,000 students to the Kansas Board of Regents, and so many other accomplishments, but I cannot take credit for any of it myself. We have a lot of amazing students taking action and I work to help where I can.

What are your plans after your term is finished?

Unsurprisingly, I am interested in a government relations/public affairs career. I am unsure what that will be, but I am excited to continue exploring various opportunities as they present themselves. Go 'Cats!

FENCE POST

KANSAS STATE CHAPTER

FALL 2023

A LETTER FROM THE CHAPTER PRESIDENT

The men of FarmHouse started the semester on a strong note by hosting our annual ice cream social with Sigma Alpha Epsilon. We had a great turnout, with the line stretching to the intersection of Denison! It was a pleasure to host our alumni for the annual alumni BBQ. Barn Party and swing dancing mixers with sororities Alpha Xi Delta and Zeta Tau Alpha made for a swing dancing September. Football continues to be a focal point for the guys. Nearly 30 members made the trip to Columbia, Missouri, to watch the Wildcats. We enjoyed hosting FarmHouse International CEO Dave Hansen for dinner and chapter. The men have been active in intramurals, with teams making the playoffs in flag football and finishing runner-up in ultimate frisbee.

The biggest highlight of the semester so far was initiating 24 new members. We are excited and encouraged by the latest class of FarmHouse men. There is plenty left to look forward to, however. We plan on hosting a recruitment weekend, another philanthropy event, elections and semi-formal. All the while, the house is also continuing its efforts to uphold its distinction of having the top GPA among fraternities. I am pleased to report that while the leaves are falling and temperatures are dropping, everything at FarmHouse is trending upward.

Fraternally,
Trent Dodge (Kansas State 20)

The annual ice cream social to celebrate the first day of classes was a big hit for students and the community.

During homecoming FarmHouse won best float and finished second overall!

This fall 24 new members were welcomed into the Fraternity. The future of FarmHouse is in good hands! Look inside to see the full list of new members.
